

Past - Papers 2021

Employee resource groups:-

- ⇒ An ERG is a group of people within an organization who voluntarily join together based on shared identity, values, interests, perspectives or goals.
- ⇒ The purpose of ERGs is to strengthen workplace relationships, foster a sense of belongingness, provide support and professional growth and ultimately value the entire company community.
- ⇒ The most common types of resource groups are as follows:
 - Diversity resource group
 - Affinity group
 - Professional development groups
- ⇒ Most people create ERGs to advocate for people with certain shared background or life experiences. These can include:
 - Gender & ethnicity
 - Age
 - Sexual orientation
 - Parental status
 - Religion and beliefs
 - Socioeconomic background

2. Outsourcing:- (delegation of task to outside entity)

- ⇒ It is the act of hiring an external firm to handle part or all of your human resource needs instead of relying on a dedicated internal HR department.
 - ⇒ Outsourcing is a strategic decision to give a task or activity to an independent contractor who determines how best to do the task or activity.
 - ⇒ The firm and the independent contractor become partners and may establish a long term decision relationship.
- Examples of outsourced activities: IT, HR, Legal services

⇒ HR Outsourcing occurs when a business instructs an external supplier to take responsibility for HR functions and perform these tasks for the business.

⇒ Some business will outsource their entire HR department while others will just outsource time-consuming administrative tasks which allow internal resource to focus on other tasks.

Which functions to outsource

- o Recruitment
- o Training
- o Performance management
- o Compensation
- o Safety
- o Welfare
- o Labour contract

Advantages :-

- o Better quality
- o Reduction in administrative costs
- o Employee morale or preserving a strong culture.

Risks of HR outsourcing:

- o Trust
- o Confidentiality
- o Dependency
- o Commitment
- o flexibility
- o Strategic Capability

3) Contingent workers-

=> A Contingent worker is someone

=> are outsourced, non-permanent workers.

who works for an organization without being hired as their employee.

=> Contingent workers may provide their services under a contract, temporarily, or on an as-needed basis.

=> Contingent workers are temporarily, part-time employees not permanent, maintain flexibility, and keep costs low

=> Companies hire Contingent workers:

- o When full-time workers are on leave
- o During period of peak demand
- o In uncertain economic times
- o To save on employee benefits
- o To screen candidates for future employment

Example:

freelancers: Self-employed individuals such as journalists and photographers.

Consultants:

Independent contractors.

Cons:

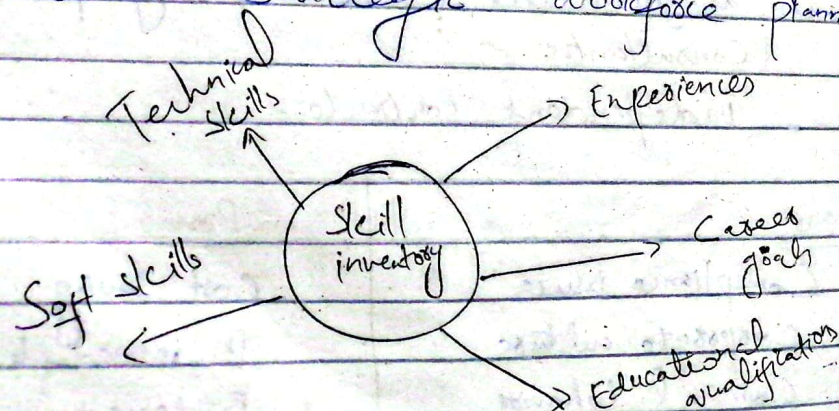

- o Compliance issues
- o Corporate culture
- o Criminal behavior risks

Pros

Cost saving
increased flexibility
Bridging the skill gap
Staying compliant

4) Talent inventory:

- ⇒ A Skill inventory is a compilation of the Skills, education and experiences of current employees.
- ⇒ Organizations use these inventories to assess whether current staff can meet company goals and where the skills gaps are.
- ⇒ Typically, it is based on employee self assessment, on skills assessment conducted by the organization, or a combination of these methods.
- ⇒ It also helps HR professionals guide the organization in key areas of recruitment, learning & development and succession planning and strategic workforce planning.

Purposes

- o Training & development
- o Talent acquisition
- o Strategic workforce planning
- o Employee retention
- o Internal mobility

5) Acquisition:

- ⇒ Acquisition is the approach of finding and attracting the right talent to apply for open positions at the right cost.
- ⇒ Companies can fill a vacant position by hiring applicants through mutual channels existing employees, based on performance, expertise and ability.

Acquisition activities:-

- o HR Planning
- o Job analysis
- o Recruiting
- o Selection
- o Orientation

6) Work Sampling

- ⇒ It is a Sampling technique and also called activity Sampling / random observation method. Snap recording method.
- ⇒ It is a statistical tool that is used by employers to predict the amount of time spent by employees on a certain task or activity.

Advantages:

- o Gives unbiased results
- o Economical
- o Can be easily interrupted
- o does not require a high level of expertise

Example:

- o A worker working in shifts does work for some part of time and remains idle for rest of the time.

Suppose that there are 60 observations and, out of which there were 31 working and 3 idle observations

$$\text{Idle time \%} = 3/60 = 5$$

$$\text{working time \%} = 31/60 = 95$$

7) Labour unions

- ⇒ A Labour union is also called trade union.
- ⇒ Labour union is an organization of workers that represents the collective interests of its members in dealing with employers.
- ⇒ Unions negotiate wages, benefits and working conditions with employers on behalf of their members.

Example:

- o American nurses association, which represents the rights and interests of people working in nursing across the United States

8) Hassamment

13) Task-focused job analysis

9) workforce diversity

14) Employee referral

10) Peer evaluation

15) job specification

11) Outsourcing

16) HRM

12) Structured job interview

Long Answer Questions (F)

- # Describe five special theme in managing human resources?
- # Identify the various sources of information used in job analysis and competency modeling?
- # Define recruitment? Explain different recruitment sources in detail also elaborates factors that affect recruiting efforts.
- # What are some major factors that distort performance appraisal?
- # Describe the primary procedure for settling disputes between employees and employers?